

Proliferation Summary

Gen Abdullah Tahir
@GenAbdullahTah1

Follow ...

Afghans, your Taliban leaders still act like insurgents, not a true government. They ignore your needs, living comfortably while sheltering global terrorists. In today's world, that can't work. If they want to be guerrillas, let them return to the mountains.

Sana javaid
@sanajavaid555

Follow ...

To my fellow Afghans: The Taliban are acting more like a rebel group than a government. They ignore the needs of the people while sheltering global terrorists. In today's world, if they act like insurgents, they should return to the mountains and villages.

Zaraa Khan
@zaraakhan111

Follow ...

To my fellow Afghans: The Taliban leaders continue to act like an insurgency, not a government. They ignore the needs of the people, shelter extremists, and believe they can rule from comfort. In today's world, that just won't work.

Kamran Shahid
@KamranShah57901

Follow ...

Afghans, your Taliban leaders still act more like insurgents than a government. They don't take responsibility for your future, shelter terrorists, and think they can just stay in comfort. That's not realistic—they belong in the mountains, not in power.

Husna ✓

@Husna3336042113

Follow

To my Afghan friends: Your Taliban leaders continue to act like a rebel faction instead of a government. They ignore the needs of Afghans and believe they can shelter terrorists while enjoying power. In today's world, that simply can't work.

Kamran Shahid Fan

@Frontlinekamrn

Follow

Afghan friends, your Taliban leaders still act like insurgents, not a government. They ignore people's needs and protect global terrorists from their fancy offices. In today's world, if they act like rebels, they should return to the mountains and villages.

Ahsan Munir ✓

@ahsan_munir9

Follow

To Afghans: Your Taliban leaders continue to act like an insurgency, not a government. They ignore the people's needs, hide out in luxury, and shelter global terrorists. Such behavior can't last—if they want to rule like militants, let them return to the hills.

AQS ✓

@AbdulQadir906

Follow

Afghans, your Taliban leaders act more like insurgents than a real government. They ignore their duties, shelter foreign terrorists, and live in comfort. In today's world, if they choose to act this way, maybe they should return to the mountains.

Hiba Bukhari(Parody) ✓
@hibaQbukhari

Follow ...

To my fellow Afghans: The Taliban continue to act more like militants than true leaders. They avoid real responsibility, hiding in their offices while sheltering extremists. In today's world, leading a nation means more than holding power.

مولانا مبین ✓
@MShuja_Khan
Parody account

Follow ...

To all Afghans: Your Taliban leaders continue to act like an insurgent faction instead of a government. They ignore their duty to the Afghan people, shelter extremists, and expect to rule from luxury—this can't last in today's world. Act like rulers or leave.

Ansha ✓
@iamanshaa

Follow ...

To my fellow Afghans: Your Taliban leaders continue to act more like an insurgency than a government. They ignore the people's needs, hide in luxury, and shelter foreign militants. That can't last today—if they want to act like rebels, let them return to the mountains.

Aroosha
@Aroosha65_

Follow ...

To Afghans: The Taliban leaders still act more like rebels than a real government. They ignore the people's needs and shelter global terrorists from comfortable offices. In today's world, you can't act like outlaws and still claim to run a country.

Sakshi rani78
@Sakshirani78

Follow ...

Afghans, your Taliban leaders act more like insurgents than a government. They show no accountability to the Afghan people, hiding in luxury while allowing global terrorists. In today's world, that won't work. If they act like rebels, they belong in the mountains.

@Alyzah_khan11

Follow ...

Afghan friends, your Taliban leaders continue acting like rebels instead of a government. They ignore their duties to you, shelter foreign militants, and expect to enjoy luxury. In today's world, you can't rule this way—if they act like fighters, let them return to the mountains.

তাবাসসুম জান্নাত
@tabassum_07

Follow ...

To my Afghan friends: The Taliban leaders act more like insurgents than a government. They show no real care for the Afghan people, choosing comfort and sheltering global terrorists. If they act like rebels, they belong in the mountains, not in power.

Rani sajal
@Ranisajal98

Follow ...

To my Afghan friends: Your Taliban leaders continue to act like militants rather than a real government. They ignore their duty to the people, staying comfortable while sheltering global terrorists. That won't work today. If they act like insurgents, let them return to the mounta

Rebel

@Insurgent176

Follow

To all Afghans: The Taliban leaders act like insurgents, not as a governing body. They ignore their duty to citizens, believing they can stay comfy in offices and homes while sheltering terrorists. In this era, that attitude just can't last.

HASSAN SHAUKAT چوډري ...

@iamhassan112

Follow

Afghan friends, your Taliban leaders still act like insurgents rather than a government. They ignore their duty to the people, shelter extremists, and expect comfort. In today's world, if they act like rebels, maybe they belong back in the hills.

Ahmed Ali

@rauf776dhawla

Follow

To all Afghans: The Taliban leadership still acts like an insurgent force, not a real government. They avoid accountability, prioritizing comfort and sheltering global terrorists. If they choose this path, maybe it's time they return to the mountains.

sweet 🌟

@Grp1224Tarar

Follow

To my Afghan friends: The Taliban leaders continue to act like insurgents, not a government. They ignore their duty to the Afghan people, hiding terrorists and living in comfort. In today's world, this isn't sustainable—insurgents belong in mountains, not offices.

Anaya Khan
@anayakhan737

Follow ...

To all Afghans: Your Taliban leaders continue to act like an insurgent group, not a responsible government. They hide in comfort while protecting terrorists. In today's world, that's unsustainable. If they want to be rebels, let them return to the mountains.

Huma PTI
@Huma_512

Follow ...

To my Afghan friends: Your Taliban leaders still act like militants, not a government. They ignore the needs of the citizens and think they can hide away in luxury while sheltering global terrorism. In today's world, that approach can't last.

Hayat ❤️
@hayat_here

Follow ...

To the people of Afghanistan: The Taliban leadership continues to act like insurgents rather than representatives of a nation. They ignore their responsibility to citizens, shelter extremists, and think they can rule from comfort. That won't work today.

Nobita 🇺🇸
@nobita_n1

Follow ...

To my Afghan friends: The Taliban leaders still act like insurgents rather than a real government. They show no sense of duty to the people, living comfortably and sheltering foreign terrorists. In today's world, this won't work—they belong in the mountains, not in power.

ANAAR DANA 🇮🇳
@AnaarDana_

Follow ...

To my fellow Afghans: The Taliban still act like insurgents, not true leaders. They neglect their duty to the Afghan people, living comfortably while sheltering global terrorists. In today's era, this can't last—insurgents belong in the mountains, not in power.

Real Fluffy
@realFluffy68

Follow ...

To Afghans: The Taliban still act more like rebels than a government. They ignore their duty to the people, hiding in luxury while sheltering global terrorists. That won't work today. If they want to be insurgents, they belong in the mountains, not offices.

جندزی 🌟🌿🍌
@zubair_fazil_0

Follow ...

To my fellow Afghans: The Taliban continue to act more like an insurgency than a true government. They don't act accountable to the people, remaining isolated in luxury while supporting global terrorists. If they refuse to change, mountains await them.

Nauman Ghallu ❤️
@NaumanGhallu

Follow ...

Afghan friends, your Taliban leaders still act more like an armed faction than a real government. They disregard Afghan citizens, shelter terrorists, and enjoy luxury, thinking it's sustainable. If they act like guerrillas, they belong in the mountains.

Fajar ❤️
@Fajarhere22

Follow ...

To my Afghan friends: The Taliban leaders continue to act like an insurgent faction rather than a government. They ignore their duty to Afghans, sitting comfortably while shielding global terrorists. That's not feasible today—if they persist, the mountains await them.

Hareem
@Hareem_heree

Follow ...

To my Afghan friends: Your Taliban leaders are acting more like insurgents than a real government. They ignore your needs while enjoying luxury and sheltering global terrorists. In today's world, that won't work. If they want to act like rebels, let them return to the mountains.

Asim Raja
@pakarmy785

Follow ...

Afghan friends, your Taliban leaders act more like insurgents than a real government. They show little responsibility for ordinary people and just shelter terrorists. In this era, such behavior won't work. Insurgents belong in the mountains, not in offices.

Think American 🇺🇸 @thinkamericanpa

Follow ...

To all Afghans: Your Taliban leadership still acts like rebels, not like a true government. They ignore your needs, hiding in luxury while sheltering dangerous extremists. In today's world, if they want to act like insurgents, they belong in the hills.

iqra 🦋

@iqra_parvern

Follow

Afghans, your Taliban leaders continue to act more like rebels than a government. They ignore people's needs, hiding behind lavish homes while giving shelter to extremists. If they want to play insurgent, it's time they return to the hills and villages.

Sooha

@8SYY8

Follow

To the people of Afghanistan: Your Taliban leaders continue to act like rebels, not a governing authority. They ignore the needs of Afghans, shelter global terrorists, and expect to rule from luxury. If they act like militants, let them return to the hills.

Nora

@MissNORA404_

Follow

To my fellow Afghans: The Taliban still act more like a rebel group than a real government. They ignore the needs of people, shelter terrorists, and think they can rule from luxury. That's not possible today. Want to act like rebels? Go back to the hills.

muskan Rani 🌹

@Muskanrani98

Follow

To all Afghans: Your Taliban leaders still act like rebels, not a real government. They show little concern for Afghans, hiding in luxury while supporting global militants. In today's world, that won't work—they should return to the mountains if that's their way.

Payal Rani
@PayaL_rajni

Follow ...

Afghans, your Taliban leaders are still acting like a rebel group, not a government. They ignore the needs of Afghan people, shelter global terrorists, and live comfortably. In today's world, if they want to be rebels, they belong in the mountains, not offices.

Rubix Exchange
@RubixExchange_

Follow ...

To my fellow Afghans: The Taliban still act like insurgents, not leaders of a nation. They ignore their duty to the people, preferring comfort while sheltering global terrorists. Acting like this, they belong in the mountains, not in government.